Don't Push Atom Bomb Issue, Says Churchill

By The Associated Press
LONDON, Nov. 7.—Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill advised Britain's labor government today against putting "pressure" upon the United States to disclose methods for the production of atomic bombs.

Churchill's statement came a day after Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov told the Russians the atomic bomb could not be kept secret and that the Soviet Union would have "atomic energy and many other things."

The oil glands in the lower layer of the human skin secrete a natural lubricant which escapes from the pores and spreads out over the surface.

Constipated? Then here's an un-

was elected governor of Virginia by better than two to one over two opponents. He carried his ticket with him.

Party control of the Kentucky senate hinged today on the outcome of seven district races, with the Democrats certain of 16 seats and the Republicans 15.

Of the 19 senate seats filled in yesterday's election, eight Democrats were unopposed and unopposed returns showed two other Democrats were elected. These, plus six holdover senators, assured the Democrats of 16 members.

The Republicans have 13 holdover senators and two others were elected without opposition, giving the GOP 15 certain seats.

Of the seven undecided races, Democrats were leading in five, and the Republicans in two, based on incomplete unofficial tabulations.

A Democrat, E. Leland Taylor, was leading the race for mayor of Louisville.

Republicans, after 14 years on the outside, swept into control of the city government of New Haven, Conn., electing William C. Greer as mayor. Cornelius A. Moylan, a Republican, was chosen as mayor of Hartford, but Waterbury picked a Democrat, John S. Monaghan.

Bridgeport kept its Socialist mayor, Jasper McLevy, elected for his seventh consecutive term.

To offset the Democratic victory registered in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Republicans re-elected their superior court judges, W. Heber Dithrich and John S. Arnold, in statewide elections.

New Conference Set in Galion Walkout

Special to The Star
GALION, Nov. 7.—Unemployment of 150 production workers at the Galion All Steel Body Co. which resulted from a walkout last Thursday morning at the plant, went into its sixth day today after conferences between labor union representatives and the company management failed to solve the problem Tuesday afternoon. Another meeting was slated for this morning. The walkout came last Thursday because workers wanted certain labor adjustments made and application of a rate range which was asked by the union last June.

acted, by 43 votes. Don R. Biggart, Republican, won reelection in the fourth ward by 253 votes over his Democratic opponent, Paul E. Seiter.

Unopposed in the fifth and sixth wards were Arthur H. Dowdle and Clarence H. Sandeen, both Republicans.

The election brought out one of the largest votes in any municipal election. A total of 9,157 ballots were cast on city issues.

Interest in the unofficial tabulation ran high during the night because of the active campaign conducted by the Marion Civic Planning Group for the Jobs and Progress program.

Returns Come Late
The Star office, where the usual unofficial tabulation was made, a returns came in had recorded several hundred calls before the first precinct reported. The first reports were slower than usual in coming in because of the heavy vote. Precinct A of the first ward was the first to report, workers appearing at election board headquarters at 8:45 p. m. Once the reports started, however, they came in fairly rapid with the last reporting about 12:30 a. m.

Election parties were in progress during the evening at the Elks and Eagles lodges and Republican and Democratic headquarters.

tradition would be given first chance. The Army expects to abandon the hospitals on the assumption the wounded in them will be either healed or will become wards of the Veterans' administration.

Crie, which has 2,136 beds, was built at a cost of $6,000,000, plus $25,000 for the grounds. The Veterans' administration was reported to be interested in Crie, because of its location, but not so much in Fletcher, Fletcher, with a capacity of 2,100, was built at a cost of $5,000,000, plus $19,500 for real estate.

Welfare Director Frazier Reams has been trying for weeks to find out if and when the state can buy the barracks and hospital at Scola Ordinance works as a temporary facility for Ohio's mental patients.

Hasn't Given Up
He indicated he had not given up on this but declined to comment on the possibility of the state getting Crie or Fletcher.

Neither of the Ohio hospitals was expected to be available until late spring, but Army officers said they would be ready for occupancy without remodeling. Welfare department officials indicated much of the present civilian staff probably could be retained.

It was assumed that Darnell hospital would revert to the state of Kentucky.

Wakeman General hospital is expected to be kept in operation as long as Camp Atterbury remains a separation point, even though the convalescent center closes Dec. 15.

FEW CLUES FOUND IN NO OPPOSITION FOR BRUTAL OHIO MURDER BUCYRUS DEMOCRATS

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—Few clues were found in the investigation of the brutal slaying of a Cleveland woman, a victim of a "Bucyrus Democrat" who was elected to the city council last year.

But police said no evidence of a forcible entry or any struggle was found in the room where the 59-year-old woman was found dead.

Police reported an electric iron and steel tubing knife were found near the body and a bent silver table knife on the kitchen floor. The slayer apparently attacked Mrs. Dolan with all three.

The body was discovered by Dolan's maid, who called police, returned home about 1 a. m. yesterday.

AMERICANS REPORTED SEIZED BY CHINESE

By The Associated Press
SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—The reported seizure by Chinese Communists of several American crewmen from a liberty ship in the Cnwanqiao area today brought a news blackout in U. S. Army headquarters in Shanghai.

Newsmen, dependent on British sources, were told some seamen were seized by the Chinese Communists but some were released with apologies.

American Army spokesmen refused to discuss the matter and the United States consul general's office here said only that "vague" reports had been received.

The known facts are the presence in North China of American Marines and the operation of several military shops, arousing considerable resentment among the Communists.

This has produced an anti-American propaganda campaign and at least two minor shooting incidents in which there were no casualties.

Chinese Communists claimed a victory today over 700 Nationalist troops fighting along the Peiping-Hankow railroad as the Kuomintang official news agency reported battling throughout the provinces of Shanxi and Suiyuan. The Communists also said they had recaptured the Hopeh province rail junction of Tzhsien Oct. 25.

B'Nai B'Rith Lodges DR. AKERS SPEAKS Arrange Program AT EPWORTH CHURCH for Armistice Day

ALBERT A. WOLDMAN

Speaker for a joint meeting of the B'Nai B'Rith lodges of Marion and Galion, Sunday, Nov. 11, will be Albert A. Woldman of Cleveland, president of District Grand Lodge No. 3, B'Nai B'Rith. The program, scheduled for 8 o'clock in the evening at the temple at 390 East Center street, will be in commemoration of Armistice day.

Mr. Woldman, who is an author, teacher and journalist, is chairman of the board of review of the Ohio unemployment compensation, receiving his appointment from Governor Lausche. Prior to his admission to the bar in 1919 he was a reporter on the Cleveland Press and assistant state editor on the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He was a member of the faculty of the John Marshall Law school in Cleveland, secretary of the Cuyahoga County Bar association and editor of The Bar Bulletin.

He is the author of the standard biography, "Lawyer Lincoln," and is nationally known as an authority on the life of Abraham Lincoln. As mayor of Cleveland, Governor Lausche named Mr. Woldman to serve as assistant director of law of that city, later appointing him to his present position.

Mr. Woldman is a leader in civic and communal activities and has been active in the work of B'Nai B'Rith for nearly a quarter of a century. He is listed in "Who's Who in America." Guests from nearby cities are expected to attend the meeting.

DR. AKERS SPEAKS AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Sifrit and R.F.A.G. Class Attend as Special Groups.

At the special services last night in Epworth Methodist church with the Sifrit and R. F. A. G. classes as special groups attending, Dr. L. R. Akers, former president of Ashbury college and now pastor in Steubenville, O., spoke on "Revive Us Again."

He said that the one force which can prevent the world from becoming a world of disaster is a moral or spiritual force which is constructive as against the force which is destructive. Science has now the power within a few moments to destroy civilization which represents the fruit of many centuries in its development. It is for the church of the living God to see to it that while science has the power it must not have the will to destroy, and this restraining influence that means safety and stability must come when nations make the Golden Rule their rule for living.

The speaker said the church must be a militant church if it is to survive. Christianity is the greatest unifying force in the universe while sin is the most divisive force. Mankind must simply learn to live together if it is to survive. "The world will be one or none. No longer may it follow the demonic policy of every nation for itself and the devil take the hindmost."

The only way out of the present crisis as Christ says, Christianity, however, is the religion of crises. It was born in a crisis, it has gone forward because of crises. Only as the church keeps step with the Christ can it meet and master this world crisis.

"The prayer of the church should be 'Revive Us Again.'"

One feature of interest in the services is the congregational singing and special musical numbers by the choir which is directed by Mrs. Earl N. Hale.

The theme of Dr. Akers at tonight's service is "The Fifth Cross."

HARRY S. EATON

Rotarians Hear Legion Leader

Harry S. Eaton Says Urgent Need Is Armistice Between Labor and Capital.

Harry S. Eaton of Ashland, state commander of the American Legion, was guest speaker in the Rotary club weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hotel Harding.

Recalling that it would soon be Armistice day of World War I, he said that he and other young men of the time had fought that "war to end wars" but today there is another Armistice day for World War II.

He voiced the conviction that what is needed now is an armistice between labor and capital, and told his audience there are only three possible ways to prevent strikes by raising wages and raising prices at the same time, by raising wages and taking the raise out of profit, or through increased productivity per worker. He said the third solution is the one recommended by the American Legion.

Speaking on the G. I. Bill of Rights, Mr. Eaton said it was conceived, drawn up, and presented by the American Legion. While the ideas behind the bill are sound, he added, he feels that it needs the cooperation of business and vocational men if it is to succeed. He declared that these young men who have beaten Hitler at his own game and brought down the "Rising Sun," deserve all that can be given to them.

To achieve an enduring peace, Mr. Eaton said it is essential that peace-loving nations be strong enough to cooperate.

"Weakness," he declared, "can not cooperate."

Mr. Lon Marsh, former WMRN radio announcer and member of the Marion Rotary club who was recently discharged from the Navy, gave a brief talk.

Henry Kaehler, chairman of the Rotary club fellowship committee for the month, introduced Mr. Eaton.

Mr. Eaton served with 83rd Division at Camp Sherman in World War I and was transferred to France, served with the same division, First Army and Division of Paris. Discharged in France on December, 1918, he became an auditor with the peace conference at Paris.

Guests of the club at Tuesday's meeting were Charles Webb of Cleveland, Capt. F. Stewart Norton, USMC, whose home is in Cleveland, Joseph Murphy of New Haven, F. E. Stiles of Columbus, Hugh E. Kirkwood, W. R. Reichenstein, William J. Marks, and Suzanne West, student reporter from the Harding High school journalism class.

3 POINTS IN BUYING ASPIRIN
 Aspirin is a powerful pain reliever and fever reducer. It is also a blood thinner, which means it can help prevent heart disease and stroke. However, it is important to know how to buy aspirin safely. Here are three key points to remember:

1. Check the expiration date. Aspirin can lose its effectiveness over time, so always check the date on the box before you buy it.

2. Look for the "U.S.P." mark. This stands for "United States Pharmacopeia," which is a national organization that sets standards for the quality of drugs.

3. Buy from a reputable source. This means a pharmacy or a store that is known for selling quality products.

NEW GIANT X-RAY

The Latest Development in 50 Years of X-Ray Research

1895—Roentgen, in Germany, discovers mysterious powerful ray, names it "X"—the unknown. One year later, W. D. Coolidge, student at M.I.T., begins experimenting with x-rays. First x-ray tubes were about 25,000 volts.

1913—Dr. W. D. Coolidge, at General Electric, invents revolutionary new x-ray tube. First reliable method of controlling x-rays. This tube was 100,000 volts.

1920—Coolidge designs a completely insulated tube and transformer for a thoroughly safe x-ray unit. The first wholly safe, convenient and adequate dental x-ray came out of this.

1923—Coolidge develops a 200,000-volt "deep therapy" tube with water-cooled target. This higher voltage tube greatly reduced time required for x-ray treatments.

1933—General Electric builds multi-section tubes producing 600,000-volt x-rays. Installed in Mercy Hospital, Chicago, and Swedish Hospital, Seattle. These units have been in constant use ever since.

1940—First 1,000,000-volt unit, plus portability, making x-rays more useful to medicine and industry. Fifty-six of these units built by G-E X-Ray Corporation used in U.S. war production—eventually to England. In 1943 General Electric scientists and engineers developed the first portable 2,000,000-volt x-ray.

1945—NEW G-E 100-MILLION-VOLT "BETATRON"!

This 130-ton giant whirls electrons, tiniest parts of atoms, faster than man has ever been able to speed them before. So fast that they make the nearly 17-foot circular orbit of a doughnut-shaped vacuum tube 250,000 times in 1/240th of a second, and striking a tungsten target, produce x-rays of 100-million-electron volts!

Dr. E. E. Charlton, left, and W. F. Westendorp, G-E scientists, designed this new machine, which generates x-rays over a thousand times as intense as the early Coolidge tube—with a wave length of 0.00025 Angstrom units, up in the cosmic ray band! These rays will penetrate a thickness of metal considerably greater than even the 2,000,000-volt x-ray unit.

But more important still may be the uses of these super x-ray machines in medical and atomic research. G-E is making them available to medical science for experimental therapy.

Starved Men Observe Christmas in Squalor of Vile Karenko Camp

In this installment of his "This Is My Story," General Wainwright tells more about what went on at the pestilential Karenko prison camp on Formosa, and leads up to his eventual removal from the place.

Installment No. 32

WE made a point of having the best Christmas we could scrape together at Karenko prison camp in 1942. Our spirits were so low at that time of the year we knew we must find some kind of spiritual lift or abandon all hope. Christmas 1942 thus became more than a holiday; it became a hook on which to hang our very lives.

Col. William F. Braley had somehow managed to save his violin from the Japs. His playing often was a great solace to us in the barracks and, fine musician that he was, he formed and became leader of a good choir made up of the prisoners.

We had no song books but, happily, several officers remembered the words of some of the more familiar Christmas carols, and these the choir religiously practiced in the days leading up to December 25.

Christmas Gifts Exchanged

We all wanted to give the appearance of being carefree on Christmas eve. I was still rocky from a couple of beatings and the beri beri but I got up and joined in the decorating of our barracks, and the swapping of small presents, after we had our Christmas Eve supper of the rice and the hot water the Japs called soup.

We cut up old cigaret boxes and anything else we could find that was colored and formed the bits into a sign reading "Merry Christmas." Some of the boys brought in a bit of greenery from the truck garden in which we were working, and spread these about in the manner of holly.

A Pretense at Christmas Cheer

When we had done all there was to do, at giving the barracks a holiday air, we sat down to admire it—pathetic as we knew it was—and tried to talk of the Christmases we had known without choking up.

Then the choir began to sing as robustly as their conditions permitted. They started in the far end of the barracks, singing a carol or two for each squad. I went into my room and sat down on my cot. I could hear their voices coming closer.

How Dr. Edwards' Helps Constipated Folks!

Olive Tablets act on the upper and lower bowels to produce more natural-like movements. No gripping. Just complete satisfaction. Caution: use as directed. 10¢, 30¢, 60¢.

At last they were outside my door and, after a pause, they began to sing an old favorite of mine, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." I could not help putting my head in my hands. I was so glad they could not see me.

Surprise from the Japs
Something came over the Japs on Christmas afternoon. To our wonder and surprise they gave us 30 ducks, for what was now more than 400 prisoners, and each of us was given an apple. The ducks

But there was no change. We continued to be forced to work to get an occasional extra spoon of rice, and we continued to be punished against the strength we were spending. The beating continued, usually at the latrine, where there was always a line-up aggravated and became our daily condition.

Unceasing Hunger

I had been hungry night and day since the start of the war. A year before food became a luxury with all of us. We woke up each morning with hunger pains in our minds, ate our rice and hot water and were as hungry after it was finished as before, yearning for food through the long day, and went to sleep to dream of food. Every time during the night when we would have to go to the latrine—and take a beating—we were so hungry that we must find nourishment. Our bodies had long since consumed all the human fats stored up by nature to provide for this very contingency. Our energies were now consuming the very muscular tissues of our bodies. Our weekly baths in the common bathing tank were shocking spectacles, for only the mass nakedness of our men brought home to each of us our terrible state.

Skin Hung Like Fockets

Our labors had even used up the inner muscle of our buttocks. The skin of our buttocks just hung down the backs of our skeletonized legs like deep pockets. But we were beyond all mortification over our appearance. There was nothing in our mind except food. The lush banquets we dreamed of at night only made the awakening to reality that much worse.

Early in January, 1943, we received something from our captors which under any other circumstance would have been a revolting gift. The Japs maintained a slaughter house near Karenko, and a shipment of cattle had been sent there to be turned into some sort of canned meat for the Jap Army. This day in question we received a quantity of animal stomachs, intestines and lungs. We ate this nauseating viscera greedily, hoping not so much to build up our strength but simply to void passing out completely.

Tough Snails Eaten

We craved so madly for animal protein that after every rain day of our members would search the ground for snails. The snails which did show themselves were far removed from the escargot which French chefs can prepare so tastefully. They were a large, tough mussel, dreadful to taste. But those who found them considered themselves lucky and hobbled quickly over to the kitchen to boil them in hot water and wolf them.

Our rice that winter contained a white worm about an inch long, with a black head. There were dozens of these worms in every cup. At first we carefully took them out of the rice with our chopsticks and put them to one side.

But in final desperation we closed our eyes and simply ate, telling ourselves that there might even be protein in a worm.

Our rice also contained large numbers of small black weevils. These were impossible to separate from the grains. We ate thousands of them, looking for the tiniest nutrition to give us the strength to work in the fields.

Gets New Assignment

Then on Jan. 7, without previous warning, I was given a new job. The three lieutenant generals, Heath, Percival and myself, the civilian governors, Shepton Thomas, Mark Young and A. I. Spitz, as well as officers more than 60 years old and those suffering from the worst disorders were appointed goat-herder.

The Japs had allowed us to purchase about 30 goats out of our prisoner of war pay, pay which was credited to us but which we rarely were given. The goats were hardly more than kids, and though the temptation was great, we could not slaughter them at the time we bought them because there would not have been enough meat to make more than a shred for each man. So we set about the task of raising them, against the cry when they would be large enough to provide for us.

It was considerably worse than watching a pot come to a boil.

"I HAD BEEN HUNGRY NIGHT AND DAY FOR A YEAR." These two contrasting pictures give a faint indication of what Gen. Wainwright underwent at the hands of the Japs. The one in his dress uniform, left, taken before the war, shows that while he was never plump he had a healthy look. The other, taken after his liberation and after he had put on several pounds, proves that the "Gaunt Hero" was not misnamed. Today's chapter details more about the incessant hunger of the Allied prisoners and the effect on them of the Japs' organized starvation plan.

And they took a lot of caring for. The work of herding them made a man of age and rank feel foolish. It would not have been so bad, probably, if we had been able to handle them as we wished. But the Japs had to have a say in the business of raising them. The Japs decided each day just where the herd could graze, and the herders must keep the wandering goats precisely in the chosen area.

Punished By Jap Sentry

It is difficult to hold free-willed goats to a certain ground. And even if one did it was sometimes wrong. Col. Stuart A. Hamilton, chemical warfare officer, and I took over the herd from General Heath one day and he outlined for us the boundaries in which we must keep the goats. This we managed to do, by keeping pretty much on the run around the herd. But then we looked up and saw an irate Jap soldier running at us. A fence separated us. He called Col. Hamilton and me over to the fence, made us stoop over it, and snipped us on the nose a few times to indicate that we were grazing the goats in the wrong place.

I sometimes think that such mean and preposterous punishment as this was almost as galling as the shock of being brutally beaten. If I had had the strength that day, and my teeth had not been loosened by malnutrition and beatings, I would have chewed right through that fence.

Humorous Comment Helps

But Col. Hamilton cooled me off. He had taken a number of simply dreadful beatings during the preceding weeks. When the nincompoop Jap flicked us on the nose, Hamilton just turned his head to me, like a man in a stock, grinned and said, "I've been hit a damn sight harder than that."

The goats grew with excruciating slowness and the food at Karenko became, if possible worse. Though he knew full well the inevitable outcome of a complaint, Col. Clarence Lawrence, formerly an instructor in the quartermaster subsistence school at Chicago, got up a letter of protest to the camp commander one day and presented it to "Boots" Nakashima for presentation.

"Boots" told the Jap soldier in charge of our kitchen instead. The soldier immediately sent for Lawrence and when the colonel appeared, half-hopeful that his expert advice would be listened to, the Jap gave him a dreadful beating all over the kitchen—while our enlisted men, who had been turned into kitchen slaves, had to stand by and watch.

More Beatings Added

Bloody and bruised, Lawrence reported back to "Boots." He was sent back to the kitchen again, after the Jap there had been told that he had protested the beating and he took another terrible whipping.

Lawrence found it impossible to believe that men could be such beasts. Certain that he could not have been understood, he limped back to "Boots" and was sent to the kitchen once more. There he received his third and worst beating. His face was hardly recognizable for days after that.

The Japs had a distressing habit of parading food before us, as a bone might be waved in front of a starving animal and then withdrawn. Each morning, shortly before we went to work, Jap soldiers would push one or two large hand-carts piled with vegetable scraps through the prison compound. Though we tried not to do it, all of us would stop whatever we were doing just to watch. Gen. King called them "hope carts."

Prisoners Get "Leavings"

The carts would be pushed first to the kitchen which provided for the Jap camp force, and we would watch all but a tiny portion of the vegetable scraps unloaded and carted inside. Then the almost empty carts—containing usually the stalks of onions and the green tops of carrots—would be moved over to our kitchen and dumped.

As our conditions became worse, the little squad room we had set aside as a hospital became more and more jammed. We had excellent American, British, Australian and Dutch doctors available at the camp. But they had no proper equipment, drugs or medicines with which to treat us.

Two More Deaths Listed

On Feb. 10, 1943, Master Sgt. James Cavanaugh, of the headquarters company of the old 111 Corps, died as a direct result of starvation, his death hastened by a streptococcus throat infection for which our doctors were not able to receive proper medicines.

A few weeks later Col. Paul D. Bunker, 59th Coast Artillery, U. S. Army, the man who had had the depressing duty of raising the white flag over Corregidor, died for want of drugs which I am sure the Japs themselves possessed in their own hospital.

Col. Bunker had commanded the ward defense on Corregidor. He was a 4th Army combat man and was killed in action. He was a member of the 1st Marine Division. He was a member of the 1st Marine Division. He was a member of the 1st Marine Division.

Some Make Their Will
More of us made wills after that, or sat down and wrote memoranda to one another. Maj. Gen. William F. Sharp came to me on March 18, 1943, and handed me a sheet of paper on which he had written:

"For General Wainwright of the Senior American Office present at the time of my demise:
(1) In case of my demise, while a Prisoner of War at Karenko, I request that the following disposition be made of my body and effects:
(a) Have body cremated and ashes buried in an urn at the Prisoner of War cemetery in Karenko, with name on urn and name-board to make future identification possible.
(b) Record location with Senior American Quartermaster Corps officer.
(c) Notify my wife, brother and sister of my demise at first opportunity, also the Adjutant General, War Department, Washington, D. C.
(d) Address of my relatives are as follows: Mrs. Kathryn L. Sharp (wife), Monkton, Baltimore County, Maryland; Mrs. Ellen D. Sharp Mallory (sister), c/o Col. J. S. Mallory, FA, U. S. Army.
(2) Call upon Colonel Ben-Hur Chastaine, U. S. Army, Prisoner of War here in camp, to take charge of my personal effects and especially my personal and official papers, and to make such disposition of them as I shall request of him in a separate paper."
The Japs saved the cruelest trick of all for the higher-ranking officers during the last days at Karenko.

Japs Keep Red Cross Supplies
Late in March our camp received 17,000 pounds of Red Cross supplies from South Africa. It was a sheer miracle, and as we saw the Godsend come in we knew that we were about to be saved from death by a perfect avalanche of canned corned beef, biscuits, cheese, jam, sugar, cocoa, tea and a host of other blessings—including many boxes of shoes. It was too good to be true... and that was just about the case. The Japs told us that they would distribute this golden harvest "later."

At the time the frustration was more numbing than any beating we had ever taken. We walked through a dull haze for several days. And then on April 2, 1943, I was rounded up with five major generals, 13 brigadier generals, a Navy captain, 11 enlisted men, the senior British and Dutch officers and the governor general.

And rather dimly I heard the Japs tell me I was leaving Karenko.

TOMORROW—New trials begin for Wainwright at a succession of new prison camps.

Poor Digestion? Headachy? Sour or Upset? Tired-Listless?

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly. Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable. Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better. Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25¢.

Armistice Day

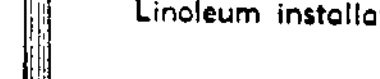

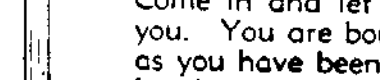

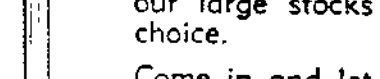

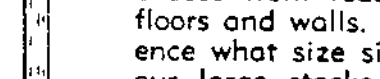

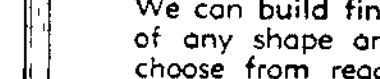

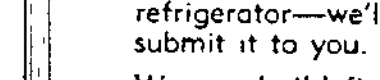

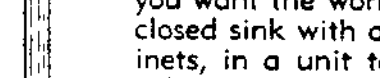

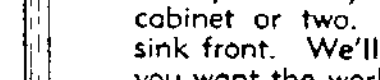

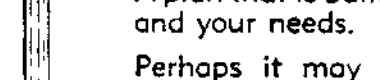

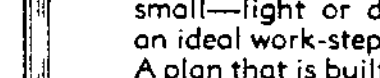

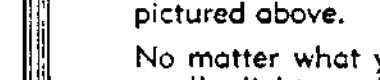

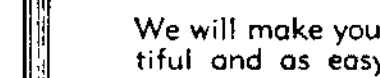

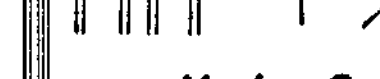

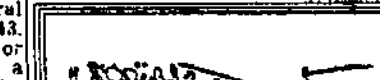

Next Sunday will be Armistice Day. And this year, while nations again are seeking to establish peace in a war-weary world, we should like to pay tribute to the heroes of that first world war.

They fought—and many thousands of them died—in battles as bitterly opposed as any in the war just ended. They fought for the same principles that our young men again have defended at such a great sacrifice.

Let us pray that the statesmen of the world now can find a formula that will insure permanent peace. The world can ill afford to sacrifice so many of its finest youth in each generation.
